Notes From the South:

A 'Modern'KKK

(Editor's Note: The Ku Klux Klan is well known for the type of activity it engages in An even more powerful group, active in the South, works behind the scenes. It controls state governments and, in Selma, Alabama, it has untold power. This is the story of the White Citizens Councils, as received from the Southern Reporting Service of Atlanta, Georgia.)

The National Guard Armory in Selma, Alabama was full of 1,500 white citizens in their Sunday best, eating barbacued chicken at $1.50 a person.

"Thank god that I am an American, a Southerner, a Mississippian and a charter member of the Mississippi White Citizen's Council," yelled Ross Barnett. The former Mississippi governor was the main attraction at the Dallas County White Citizens' Council annual membership dinner and rally.

Barnett told them that "the secret purpose of our enemies is to diffuse our blood, confuse our minds and degrade our character, that we may not be able to stand up against the wiles of the devil."

Barnett's speech called for the maintainance of "racial purity" and the "Anglo-Saxon Protestant heritage," and continuing the fight against the "communist conspiracy." He seemed unaware of recent happenings in the country. Barnett talked in generalities. The people were looking for answers to their problems; they wanted specifics; Barnett talked of "Americanism."

The former governor did not once mention Negro voter registration which was in the minds of the crowd in a county where Negroes make up 57 per cent of the population.

Dallas County, population 57,000, is located in the heart of the Black Belt of Alabama. Selma is its county seat. It is a county where 87 per cent of all Negro families make less than $4,300 a year and where 67 per cent of the Negroes do not have a high school education.

It is a county that boasts that it has the first, largest and most active chapters of Alabama's Assessment of Citizens Councils.

MAINTAIN FASCISM

The announced program of the Dallas County White Citizens' Council is "to maintain states rights, segregation and racial integrity." The Council states that it is "leading the resistance movement against race mixers, and keeping advocates of racial strife out of many communities." It says that, "It is preserving our social and economic order by acting quietly and without fanfare...to prevent racial strife."

The Council's definition of racial strife was brought out in an ad in the Selma Times-Journal, June 2, 1963. It was, "Is it worth four dollars (membership) to you to prevent sit-ins, mob marches and wholesale Negro Voter registration efforts in Selma?"

In order to "prevent" Negro activity the Council must maintain control over the whole community. This means not only keeping Negroes "in line" but also whites who do not follow its program-

The white group maintains this control through two means: organization and infiltration. It organizes the white leadership of the community to effect its program, because in order to be effective the Council must eliminate all dissent from whites.

Most whites in the community are members, but not all by choice. "There is great social and economic pressure to join. Not to join would be socially lowering and economically damaging," a local white woman said.

'COOPERATE OR ELSE..'

The Council has many means to pressure those who do not join. In May 1959, the Dallas Council dealt with uncooperative whites by publishing a list of all business and professional people who were not members.

With the whites organized, the Council "infiltrates" the community, or as Robert Patterson, Executive Secretary of the Citizens' Councils of Mississippi puts it: "The Citizens' Councils think and plan as a group and then are able to act as individuals within their various churches, schools or any other other organization to which they may belong. This has already proved effective in many, many instances.

The Council most effectively works through individual members who are in important business and government positions. It uses these people to put its program into practice.

The Dallas County Council is a prime example of the group's power; its leadership reads like a who's who in the community. The president of the Dallas Coucil is former mayor Chris Heinz. Heinz is a member of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce and a leading insurance and real estateman. He is also a good friend of Col. Richard Ault, commandant of Craig Air Force Base, one of the major "industries" of Selma. Ault has, on numerous occassions, refused requests by SNCC to declare Selma off-limits to Air Force personnel.

It was Heinz who introduced Barnett at the rally. He told the group, "We can no longer afford the luxury of the attitude of 'Let George (Wallace) do it."

"We have arrived at a point when all white people must stand up and be counted," the former mayor said. "We must lay aside personal differences and stand united as one unbreakable unit."

Citizens' Council Must Detail Money

By JAMES SAGGUS
Associated Press Writer

The pro-segregation Citizens' for the monthly donations.

Council must make a detailed accounting of money donated by the state Sovereignty Comthey began with $20,000 lump mission or find such contributions classed as illegal, it was learned Friday.

Informed sources said the State Budget Commission office has advised Sovereignty Commission Director Erle Johnston Ir that such a detailed accounting was necessary to meet legal requirements of the legislative bill appropriating the funds sum contributions in May, 1960. After that $5,000 per month donations were made until March. 1961, when the amount was cut to $4,500. The figure was cut to $2,000 in October, 1962.

Records in the State Auditor's Office show to date $193,500 has been donated by the Sovereignty Commission to the councils to help finance the council's ridio-TV series, the "Citizens Council Forum."

At one point, a suit was filed in federal court to force the donations to stop, but it was not prosecuted. Sources close to the commission said in the past the reductions in the donations were actually compromises be-tween those who favored them and those who did not.

The councils have had a strong voice on the commission, because several legislators who serve on the commission hold membership and official capacities in the council organization.

Johnston declined to confirm or deny the report.

Earl Evans, director of the Budget Commission, would say only his office had written a letter on the subject.

Dick Morphew, director of promotion for the Citizens' Council told the Associated Press he knew nothing of such a move. Council Administrator W. J. Simmons was out of the state and not available for comment.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

The Memphis Citizens Council held a rally in that city Friday night, with Mississippi's Gov. Ross Barnett as the speaker.

But, our attention, has been attracted by an advertisement in a Memphis newspaper appearing earlier which extended an invitation to the general public to attend.

In that advertisement there appeared a statement that a great many all over this nation might long since have take en to heart.

Said the Memphis Council:

"We intend to defeat integration by electing office-holders who are dedicated in their opposition to integration."

Integration has made inroads in Memphis (It is too bad the Citizens Council wasn't formed earlier in that city.

It is a mater of record that every time any city or community has been integrated, officialdom has given tacit approval if not cooperation.

Mississippians have generally elected segregationists. But, even the vigilant eyes of our voters sometimes cannot detect the real caliber of an office-seeker without some investigation. But, so far, our voters have been fairly successful in selecting good segregationists.

The charge carries a maximum pen-alty of 10 years at hard labor. In the words of the state district attorney, Moore advocated in public and private opposition to the government of the state of Louisiana by unlawful means, and as a member of the Congress of Racial Equality, an organization known to the offender to advocate, teach, and practice op-position to the government of the state of Louisiana. ... His bond totals $12,500. We don't have the money to secure his release.

Rev. B. Elton Cox, a CORE field secretary has received a 21-month sentence and fined $5,700 for leading a Baton Rouge protest march. In New Orleans, 254 CORE demonstrators have been charged with the crime of parading in support of fellow students. OVER CIVIL RIGHTS

United Press International

The influence of Mississippl's white Citizens Councils is being put to a stern test in a controversy concerning the Federal Civil Rights Commission.

The commission has asked nine Mississippians—seven whites and two Negroes—to serve on a state advisory board which would suggest courses of action to be taken by the commission in the state.

The two Negroes, neither a member of the NAACP, reportedly agreed to accept appointment. Of the whites, a Methodist minister has said he will serve, an editor has rejected the offer and the others are undecided.

A similar attempt to corganize a board failed last year after the Citizens' Councils said any Mississippian who accepts a board appointment would be a traitor.

Again, the councils are saying word.
It is our firm belief that no decent or responsible citizen in the South will be so stupid as to allow himself to be used for the betrayal of his own people, asserted William J. Simmons, editor of the official council publication.

"Any scalawag southerner who fromts for our mostal enemies will face the well-deserved distaste, contempt, and costracism that any proud people would feel for a traitor." Simmons warned. However, there are indications some persons are willing to buck the will of the councils, whose membership rolls are filled with some of the state's most prominers names including Gov. elect

Ross Barnett.
State Rep. Joel Blass of Wig-gins, who has been asked to serve, said he is undecided but vowed he would let no amount noise and shouting from the councils affect his decision.

"I'm not about to surrende He added that the racial problem cannot be solved by "namecalling" but can be worked out only by men of reason; and common sense.

attorney, said the commission told him it was interested in getting advisory board members with typical Mississippi viewpoints favoring segregation.
But Simmons repeated that any Mississippians who accept appointment automatically brand themselves as integrations s, whather or not they have he courage to admit it to themselves or their neighbors."

"Let there be no mistake about it." said Simmons. "We are entain our segregated way of life. Our enemies will stop at nothing. CITIZENS COUNCILS

When the Cifizens Councils of South Carolina were first organized to meet the threat of forced integration of the public schools, one of their spokesmen explained the purpose of the organization.

"We must avoid an emotional crisis," he said. "If some organization of leading, right-thinking people is not formed to meet the problem, the segregation gauntlet will be snapped up by rabid, radical groups that could do untold harm to orderly government and racial harmony in South Carolina,"

That the Citizens Councils have kept an even keel was evident in the talks that were made at a state-wide meeting in Columbia this week. It is evident also in the lack of discord and friction in South Carolina as contrasted with upheavals that have occurred in some of our sister states.

The emphasis in this state, as was pointed out by Senator Marion Gressette, head of the committee familiarly known by his name, has been on these points:

- (1) Educational opportunity above social change.
- (2) Protection of the rights of the citizens.
- (3) Individual liberty and popular freedom.
- (4) Prevention of rebellion and upheaval.
- (5) Progress of all races.
- (6) Equal opportunity for individual development.
- (7) Re-establishment of Constitutional government.
- (8) The right of individuals to choose their representatives and to govern themselves.
- (9) Public acceptance of Southern precepts.
- (10) Continued communication between the races.

Senator Gressette and Farley Smith, executive secretary of the South Carolina Councils, cited the ostacles to the program as these:

(1) Lethargy on the part of the people and their leaders. (The attitude of "it can't happen here" has been the cause of difficulties in other Southern states.)

(2) Overzealous actions by individuals whose intentions are good, but out of tune with the overall program.

(3) Fence-sitters who are unconcerned, but waiting to jump to which ever side is to their personal advantage.

(4) Any interracial crime.

"Let us not lose sight of the fact," Senator Gressette warned, "that the basic issue is a showdown between government by the people and a dictatorship of the worst sort."

The Citizens Councils of South Carolina are handling their affairs with calmness, thoughtfulness and denity—the opposite of the description ascribed to them by the forces who would belittle or destroy them.

Group Loses Members, Runs Deficit, Fights Foes' Moves to Curb It

But Leaders Plan No Let-Up In Aggressive Tactics to Speed Racial Integration

Portrait of Pressure Group

By LOUIS KRAAR Staff Reporter of THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

NEW YORK-The 48 directors of the com-bative, interracial National Association for the Advancement of Colored People met in Man-hattan one recent morning to take stock of their battle-scarred organization.

The directors-from Atlanta educator Benjamin E. Mayes to former Brooklyn baseball star Jackie Robinson—counted some scars that are more than skin deep. A series of Southern state actions aimed at curbing the N.A.A.C.P. has contributed to these results:

Membership has dropped 48,000, or 14%, during the past year—the first decline since 1949. The association's operating budget shows a $52,000 deficit for 1967. And the absociation faces long court fights defending itself against suits filed by Alabama and Virginia.

This stock-taking is of significance to a great many more Americans than those militantly engaged in promoting Negro interests. The N.A.A.C.P. has been a central figure in the race relations battles that have grown in intensity in the U.S. in recent months. It has been the most aggressive leader in the fights to speed integration of schools, to increase the hiring of Negroes in Northern and Southern factories and to eradicate other evidence of factories and to eradicate other evidence of what it considers discrimination against the colored race. Its strength and its strategy will have much to do with the intensity—and perhaps the success—of such efforts in the months

"Time Is Long Overdue"

The N.A.A.C.P. setbacks the board heard about at its recent meeting were described to the directors by the association's lean, impeccably-dressed executive secretary, Roy Wilkins. The 55-year-old official, in his most orotund voice, added some words for those who wish the N.A.A.C.P. would slow down its integration efforts: "Our reply is that we're also tegration efforts: "Our reply is that we're already going slowly, according to law and order, that 93 years have passed since emancipation and that we think the time is long overdue for us and our children to enjoy these rights."

This bit of oratory simply means the association, despite its sethacks, has no intention of becoming any less aggressive. Its strength remains considerable. It still counts $02,000 members. Its Washington lobby is influential. Its reserve fund now totals nearly $250,000. To date its legal department has won practically strengths. s legal department has won brackenly depreme Court case it has undertaken.

tactics totiay as it has used throughout peppery 49-year history. It wages court bat less up to the final appeal, eagerly solicits political support from both parties, maintains a constant, heavy public relations barrage—

Georgia insists the association is dominated throughout the final appeal of the fin and raises money to back all its sunday activities.

Through its local chapters, the organization manages to keep an astonishing number of irons in the fire. Recently, for example, the N.A.A.C.P. was simultaneously engaged in a school desegregation suit in Atlanta, a camschool desegregation suit in Atlanta, a campaign for an anti-discrimination law for private housing in New York City (the faw was passed), a voter registration drive throughout the South and a campaign to bar blackface skits in Northern schools—among other activities. While the N.A.A.C.P. now has begun to contain some attack suidance programs for foster some career guidance programs for Negro youths, it still functions mainly as a pressure group rather than a social agency. Segregation Spur

The power and importance of this militant group has grown with the national significance of the segregation issue. The N.A.A.C.P.'s legal arm handled the original school cases that resulted in the Supreme Court's 1954 desegregation edict, and it has helped in nearly all the hundred-odd legal fights to implement that decision.

Thus, the current Southern state attacks on the association, if successful, could well shift the balance of power in the desegregation controversy. Many Deep South areas would make no moves to integrate without continued court

The varied judicial and legislative moves against the N.A.A.C.P. are designed to counter its legal, political and other pressures for mixing the races. The Southern attacks include bans on state employe membership in antisegregation groups, laws requiring publication of membership lists, rigid registration rules for N.A.A.C.P. chapters, and laws limiting organized support of legal action against

In the Supreme Court this month, N.A.A.C.P. attorneys argued against ouster of the association by Alabama. "If we lose this case, we're as good as half dead in the South," confides one official. Alabama is trying to keep the N.A.A.C.P. from operating within its borders; state courts have enjoined the association from doing business there because it didn't register as an out-of-state corporation and have levied a $100,000 fine against the group for refusing to furnish membership lists.

A group of Virginia measures that, in effect, limited N.A.A.C.P. activities was struck down last week, however, by a special Federal Court in Richmond. The association has been fight-ing the laws for some time, and this decision represents a major victory. The voided Virginia laws required disclosure of membership lists and funds and registration with the state, along with a prohibition on "barratry"-stirring up litigation.

"Whatever the result of the Alabama case, it seems clear that the N.A.A.C.P. itself must face and fight a series of legal maneuvers designed to so occupy the time of our lawyers that they will be unable to push ahead on the desegregation front," declares Robert L. Carter, the association's general counsel, who now works full time on cases against the N.A.A.C.P.

Threats and attacks against the association, of course, aren't new, Sen, Tainiadge (D. Ga.) has called the N.A.A.C.F. teaders eman covernor of North Garable Luther calls it a "militant and selfish organion." Attorney General Eugene Cook of Georgia insists the association is dominated by "subversive elements"—a charge refuted by F.B.I, chief J. Edgar Hoover.

But, at one temperate Southern observer puts it: "The undermining of the social trad-tion of racial segregation is, in the even of some continuous, subversive. The fact this undermining has been done by legal means does not alter that judgment." Other Southern moderates question the use of legal pressure to achieve such a vast social change so quickly.

Even organizations which share most of the N.A.A.C.P.'s goals but generally shun its militant means, "We're trying to achieve the same and as the N.A.A.C.P.," says an official of the National Urban League, an interracial group, "but we prefer using the slower methods of education and community cooperation." Cooling-Off Period

And since the violence of Little Rock, many friends of the N.A.A.C.P. from the North and South have been begging for a cooling-off period, to allow emotions to settle. But to an association founded in the abolitionist spirit. such strategy is unthinkable.

Two-thirds of the times that phone rings.

it's some friend begging or cajoling me to slow down," reports chief counsel Thurgood Mardown," reports chief counsel Thurgood Marshall. "Why, if I slow down any more, I'll be running backwards.

Bitting in the association's national headquarters with his long legs crossed, Mr. Wilkins says, "If we let up now that we have the Supreme Court decision, we'd lose a lot of Negro membership, a lot of liberal Northern support. Besides, we'd give Southern extremists more of a green light.

From his fifth floor office in the mid-Manhattan Willkie Memorial Building, Mr. Wilkins plans to keep his staff of 70 pushing. His goal for 1963: An end to state and local laws which the N.A.A.C.P. thinks discriminate against Negroes in voting, housing, jobs, transportation, and public accommodations.

This ambitious goal was set several years back by a membership convention, which in theory makes N.A.A.C.P. policy. Actually, the association is largely a staff headquarters op-eration, with Mr. Wilkins as boss and an elected board of directors monitoring major decisions. The 1,346 local chapters are more or less autonomous, but they must follow association goals and their success often depends on strong support from the national office for any major action.

Prestige People

Rank-and-file members comprise most of the present board along with a generous sprinkling of such "prestige people" as Walter Reuther, United Auto Workers president: Elenor Roosevelt, wife of the former President; and former Sen. Herbert Lehman of New

Such "name" board members naturally help the association raise money and political support. About 85% of the N.A.A.C.P.'s $700,000 annual operating budget comes from members' dues of $2 to $10, with the rest rounded out by contributions. Reserve funds of $246,664 last year came from donations and bequests. In addition, the branches collect over $400,000 in local dues, and donations to a separate national legal fund exceed $300,000

Much of the N.A.A.C.P.'s cash will south positical action during the next three years. With the passage of the new civil rights law, the association plans to stress voter registration in the South. "The realistic immediate goal" for 1960, according to Mr. Wilkins, is to bring total Negro registration in Dixie to 3 million voters—45% more than now are registered in the 11 Southern states.

Voting Records

The N.A.A.C.P. makes a practice of spec-ifying which candidates it regards as "friends" or "foes" of the Negro, and indirectly suggesting that voters support the "friends" at the polls. The association distributes voting records of Congress, for example, on issues it believes are important.

"Of course, we can't afford to ignore many issues, even if they're not strictly racial ones, because our people are concerned with rent control, minimum wage laws, and public housing," says Mr. Wilkins.

No one knows just how much influence the N.A.A.C.P. exerts over Negro votes. Mr. Wilkins, of course, rates the association's influence pretty highly.

Speaking expansively of the N.A.A.C.P.'s power, Clarence Mitchell, head of the organization's Washington lobby, argues: "The civil rights bill passed because we made it clear to Congress the only way to get back in office was to get a bill on the books." By 1960, he predicts, "We shall see colored Congressmen elected from the South."

This militant attitude on politics and other matters dates back to the association's founding—an event largely credited to a white Southern writer's indignation at a Northern race riot. Kentucky-born William English Walling wrote an angry article about a riot in Springfield, Ill., in 1903. After seeing the piece in a liberal weekly, the Independent, a New York social worker, Mary White Ovington, and a leader of immigrant groups, Henry Moskowitz, began forming the N.A.A.C.P.

Dominated by Whites

From the beginning, the association was dominated by whites and assumed the militant philosophy of the abolitionist movement. In more recent years, both the control and membership have shifted mainly to Negroes. However, current president, New York attorney Arthur B. Spingarn, like all his predecessors, is white.

Another change, according to Mr. Wilkins: "We've shifted from just a slugging outfit to one with a broader program." Few observers notice any let-up of N.A.A.C.P. slugging, but the association has broadened its activities among young people and in the fields of labor and housing.

A program for career guidance, political education, and training for future N.A.A.C.P. leadership is conducted by the association's youth and college division. Some 34,000 members, ranging from 10 years to 25 years of age, belong to this division, including white students from all-white Southern colleges such as Duke University in Durham, N.C., and Vanderbilt in Nashville, Tenn.

"The white kids in the South take attitudes very different from their parents. That's a real hope for us," declares lanky Herbert L. Wright, the young head of the youth division. "Of course, not all these white students come around all the way to our view," he adds.

The soft-speaking Mr. Wright talks enthusiastically of the career guidance programs the N.A.A.C.P. charters in many communities are running. "Most of our Negro kids have been brain weeked because they see little incentive for doing well. We're trying to tell them of the any opportunities that are open so they won't discouraged," he says.

A more controversial activity conducted by youths on the local level is sponsorship of economic boycotts to combat alleged discrimination. "We don't encourage boycotts, but they're free to use them," reports Mr. Wright.

Perhaps one of the hidden lines of NA.A.C.P. strength lies in this youth division, many association officials indicate. At Harvard, the N.A.A.C.P. chapter claims to be the second largest student group on campus. And one of the largest chapters in the country (nearly 400 members) is at Oberlin College in Ohio, although most of the college's 2,100 students are white.

The housing department has gained new attention since New York City passed the first law outlawing discrimination in privately owned housing recently. "We don't try to lead Negroes by the hand. All we're trying to do is create a situation in which a man can live where he wants, according to his economic means," says Madison S. Jones, special assistant for housing.

Housing Booklet

A housing booklet the N.A.A.C.P. distributes to local leaders, however, suggests the associa-tion may lead some Negroes by the hand. The publication suggests that Negroes should apply to segregated public housing projects, and adds: "Notify the national office of such action and results. We will carry on from there."

"We work on discrimination in housing through public support. Even if it's private housing, that segment often has support from the Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration loans," says Mr. Jones. Both these Government agencies, the Negro official concedes, decline to do much about N.A.A.C.P. discrimination charges in private

"F.H.A. has agreed to encourage developers who build integrated projects. And when there are repossessions, these buildings are sold without regard to race," claims Mr. Jones.

Whether this can be accomplished without disturbance depends a lot on the area-and the emotional climate at the time. Negroes moved into Levittown, L.I., with few objections from white residents. But when, shortly after Little Rock, a Negro bought a home in Livittown, Pa.-and took over the existing V.A. mortgage-stones were thrown and protest demonstrations were staged. The Negro, William Myers, Jr., still lives in the big develop-ment, but so far no other Negro families have moved in.

"Segregated Again"

Mr. Jones says the association doesn't want "to flood areas with Negroes. That would be segregation again." To charges that Negroes in all-white communities tend to drive property values down, Mr. Jones counters:

"Naturally, values will depreciate if some Negroes move in and all the whites move out. This practice has been aided and abetted by some real estate brokers." Most banks will not finance Negro homes in predominantly white communities, he adds.

Many proponents of racial integration in general question the N.A.A.C.P.'s wisdom in trying to control or regulate the sale of private property and appeals to the top command.

"George Meany's own union, the plumbers, refuse to admit Negroes in most parts of the country, North as well as South. The right to belong to a building trades union is usually a necessary condition for employment as part of the collective bargaining agreement," declares Mr. Hill, one of the comparatively few non-Negroes on the N.A.A.C.P. staff.

In New York's Collecum building, uptewn from the main association offices, are the new quarters of the N.A.A.C.P. Legal Defense and Education Fund, Inc.

Stack of Books

Counsel Thurgood Marshall, flanked by many of his weighty law books stacked on the waxed floor of his new office, explains the position of this legal arm. "We were set up in 1940 as a separate group. We became even more divorced from the association itself in 1956 after the U.S. Internal Revenue Department began studying our tax situation."

Though closely allied in goals, the legal group functions separately from the N.A.A.C.P. Contributions to the legal body are tax deductible, unlike those which go to the association itself. The association is denied tax-exempt status because it seeks to influence legislation.

The legal fund functions as a legal aid society for Negroes. "We don't take a case unless the man comes to us," says Mr. Marshall, a hardy, graying Negro.

Laughing vigorously when a reporter asks what the legal arm's strategy and long range battle plans are, Mr. Marshall replies: "There's no master plan. Naturally, the first segregation suits we filed were soft belly ones. We had to pick those that would get to the care of the problem. Now the cases come to as they crop up locally. Ha! I wish some tipnes we could hand-pick them. Perhaps would be easier." Scanps Probed
